2009

Dear Family and Friends,

I must say that this year has been a very interesting year. Ok, maybe not super exciting, but it should be enough to cover this page. Here it goes.

Summer Vacation in NC Outer Banks

The first exciting thing is our Spring Break. We traveled down to Tennessee and went to a few exciting places. We stopped at Fall Creek Falls park and got to hike a little bit. Like about three miles. But it was worth it. We got an amazing view of a water fall. The family got to get a little bit wet too. When we got back to the apartment, the kids got a bubble bath. It all started with a spill. An accidental spill. But that intsy bintsy spill turned into a huge lake of bubbles. Once we were in our bathing suits, then we got the fun. (After Emily got a lecture about the tiny spill). And there was the mistake of the turning on the bubblers. But I bet you already know what happened after that. We also stopped by the Ripley's Aquarium. Petting rays, holding horse-shoe crabs, and standing under 8 foot sharks was all included. Pretty awesome.

The next thing that we did was going to Grandma and Grandpas' anniversary celebration. We got to visit them and the rest of the family. We thought this was it, but oh no, dad and mom had other ideas. Instead we drove down to the Outer Banks, and stayed in the same house as last year. Hmm, sounds familiar. We did get to see some other things that last year we didn't. Like going to the Queen Elizabeth park,(above), and getting to go to the Wright Brothers kite show. Walking on the beach and boogie boarding was squeezed in there too. Being on the beach was also a privilege in the sand castle making. We had contests to see who's would stay up the longest.

This fall we were all in the hospital. Well, not all of us. But Mom and Dad were. Mom had foot surgery. They had to break her toe, put a nail in it, and put it in a cast. Now we have a tinwoman in the family. Dad's surgery was for a better cause. His surgery was so that they could change his eyes so that no glasses are needed so that he can see. Even my best friend says that its strange to see him without glasses.

This Winter we are going to go up to the Grandpa and Grandma Krohn's house for Christmas. We are going to be able to catch up with the cousins and aunts and uncles. We hope to see them all if possible. This year was great and don't you worry. Next year will be even better..... I think.
